

Tuesday Night

Dear Mom,

You keep asking about what chance there is of me getting home, here is the latest dope we have and it's still in the rumor stage: and you have two years in you will be returned home as soon as possible. That means in five and a half more months I'll be eligible to be sent home!

Our ball team is really rolding. We have won our last four games by scores of 11-2, 2-1, 10-5, and 14-0. My batting average has dropped to .461 but that's still pretty good.

Was awfully sorry to hear that Harrod is so sick, be sure to keep me posted on how he's doing.

We took quite a few more pictures of the ball games and of our pep. Will send them to you as soon as we can print them. We don't have too much time for that now. We play ball almost every evening after chess and by the time we have shaved

after the game its time for the show
or a card game and soon its time for bed. Time is really flying by at present.

Just finished giving "Trample" her bath so she's under the bed whimpering. She really hates a bath.

Well guess that's about it for now, am o.k. and feeling fine.

your loving son,
Jimmie

P.S.

By the way the ratings we taken off the frozen list and somehow I got another stripe. Its now Sgt. Leister!
